Progress that Matters, Led by the People We Support

Sarah, Andrew and Lisa enjoyed a calm and active day out at Danson Park with staff. The walk around the park supported their physical health and gave everyone a chance to enjoy fresh air and gentle movement. As they explored the flowers and scenery, the group appeared relaxed and happy, which helped support positive mental health and overall wellbeing.

They chatted with each other and with staff throughout the visit, strengthening relationships and practising communication in a natural, social setting. The outing also encouraged small steps in independence, such as deciding what to photograph and engaging confidently with the environment. Being out in the community provided opportunities to stay safe while walking together and following guidance when needed.
